Remembering His death...

Someone in the office suggested I should write something about our 50th Wedding Anniversary vacation. I wouldn't want to mention Sheila by name but we had a wonderful vacation shared with our daughter and her family. Let me share just a little about 50 years of marriage. To start, Kay and I both had good models to observe. Both our parents celebrated 50th Wedding Anniversaries. Perhaps the most noble trait to a lasting marriage is summed up in two words "Promise Keeping"... it is required of both parties in the marriage. Are you a person who keeps your word?

I watched the older gentleman for several minutes as my wife Kay talked with her mother in the care facility. As I moved closer I asked, "How long have the two of you been married?" "Fifty-five years now." As he responded, he gently wiped some soup from her chin. "She doesn't really know me anymore, but I know her." How long have you been doing this?" "A couple of years now, I come every day to feed her dinner." "May I shake your hand?" "Why?" "It is good to meet a man who keeps his vow!" I could see tears well up in his eyes and could feel them in my own as well. I was witness to true love that had stood the test of time. This love had proved its worth, for it did not depend on the response of the one loved or on how things turned out. The virtue was in the one who loved, who remembered the vow. "In sickness, and health, in heartache and happiness, until death do us part."
